MERCILESS ATTACK IN LIVELY DEBATE

Attitude of the Roman Catholic Church Toward the Public School System Was the Subject Taken to Combatte.

Herr Bebel, May 9.—During the discussion following the third reading of the budget estimates today, Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, referred to Dr. Paul Nikolaus's sketches at Carlsruhe and Karlsruhe, remarking that the Emperor's attitude to France had caused a very serious feeling there. He also referred to the Kaiser's letter from Delhi, addressed to the Count of Waldersee, in which the Kaiser declared that the public was with him in his views. The Kaiser said the public was with him in his views. The Kaiser said the public was with him in his views. The Kaiser said the public was with him in his views.

Herr Bebel asserted that western Europe has special reasons to rejoice at Russia's fear the war, for the more Russia is engrossed by the struggle the less likely it becomes that Russia will run to the assistance of western Europe.

The speaker referred to the recent visit of Emperor William to Vienna, and to the visit of Emperor Francis Joseph to Berlin, alluding to the Emperor Frederick monument unveiled in Count Goltz, the Kaiser's aide-de-camp, and the Crown prince's visit to Berlin. He said he was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna. He said he was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna. He said he was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna.

Herr Bebel emphatically denied that the Socialists relished the misfortunes of the German people. In any conflict, German sympathies are far more on the side of Japan than on that of Russia.

The Czar and the Czarina.

The chancellor pointed out that the Russian people, and the Russian army, were animated by the fervent wish that the present embroilment in the far eastern war might speedily be ended. He expressed the hope that Russia would be victorious. He objected to Herr Bebel's disrespectful language in using a distinction from the strictly friendly which Germany owes to the Czar.

Adjourning to a date to be fixed by Herr Bebel.

Herr Bebel, in reply, said: "I am sorry that I have misunderstood the chancellor, but I certainly did not intend to offend the Czar. I am sorry that I have misunderstood the chancellor, but I certainly did not intend to offend the Czar. I am sorry that I have misunderstood the chancellor, but I certainly did not intend to offend the Czar."

Herr Bebel continued: "I said that I was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna. I said that I was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna. I said that I was glad to see that the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bulow had not yet gone to Vienna."

Herr Bebel concluded by saying that he had not intended to offend the Czar, and that he had misunderstood the chancellor. He said that he had not intended to offend the Czar, and that he had misunderstood the chancellor. He said that he had not intended to offend the Czar, and that he had misunderstood the chancellor.

Paris, May 10.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of the Echo de Paris telegraphs as follows:

General Kuropatkin has outlined a general retreat and he would rely on it to avoid a battle until he has sufficient forces. He has actually at his disposal not more than 150,000 exclusive of the garrison at Port Arthur, which consists of 20,000 and the garrison at New Chwang of 5,000.

A general who knows the secret of the mobilization tells me that the men 1900, making up the required 500,000 will leave Moscow July 2, adding: "We will be very sorry if the railway is not working well. It is not likely that General Kuropatkin will fathom the troops movements. If the Japanese prevent him he will retire from Liaoyang to Mukden or even to Harbin. Except certainly a [illegible] it is not likely that General Kuropatkin will fathom the troops movements. If the Japanese prevent him he will retire from Liaoyang to Mukden or even to Harbin. The Chinese have refused to allow the Russians to enter the city. The Russians have refused to allow the Chinese to enter the city. The Russians have refused to allow the Chinese to enter the city.

The Japanese have requested the United States government to inquire into the fate of [illegible] Port Arthur. It is believed that several of them were captured.

It is reiterated that the Japanese have only [illegible] army.

"I learn from [illegible] that the Russians in the battle of the Yalu lost 40 guns, enormous quantities of war material, provisions, ammunition and equipment."

Nikolsky Tolstoi.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—[illegible] A letter written by the Associated Press correspondent at Port Arthur on the day the Petropavlovsk went down, which has been received by the bureau, says that the battleship Pobieda suffered a very slight injury from the explosion of a Japanese mine beneath its hull.

Advices from the Associated Press correspondent on the Manchurian bank of the Yalu, dated April 15, says that the receipt of the news of the disaster to the Petropavlovsk spread consternation in the army. It was at first believed to be a lie spread by the Chinese. This gave place to the feeling that the army must try its utmost to uphold the honor and glory of the fatherland. The correspondents say that Lieut. General Zassulitch was closely watching the Japanese who were calling on the Korean bank of the Yalu.

They add that they understand the Japanese purposed crossing by the same road used in the Chino-Japanese war and that the army was confident the Japanese would find they would not have such an easy time.

ACCIDENT ON ELEVATED

Rear End Collision in New York Was Followed by Fire. Motorman Killed—Panic Among Passengers.

New York, May 9.—A rear-end collision occasion[illegible] trains on the Third Avenue Elevated railroad between 58th and 59th streets this afternoon, killed one motorman and injured [illegible] persons. The accident occurred at one of the busiest times in the afternoon and traffic on elevated and surface lines was blocked.

The trains were on the southbound track.

The first car of the rear train smashed its way three-quarters of its length through the rear car of the other train, and the exposed wiring set fire to the wreckage. The fire added to the panic. Passengers leaped through the shattered windows, braving the dangers of the third rail and until firemen and policemen arrived intense excitement prevailed.

With such force did the rear train run the one in front that the cars were lifted from the tracks and then settled down with a crash. Those on the edge of the [illegible] were thrown [illegible] and they were also dropped up by firemen. So great was the force of the collision that the cars could not be drawn apart and it was necessary to chop them to pieces.

When the firemen arrived the passengers, many of whom were women, were running about wildly on the elevated structure or were struggling to get out of the cars. Several were injured by leaping from the windows.

The arrest of the conductor of both trains and the motorman of the first train was ordered.

The first train had been held up by repairs at 58th street and was at a standstill when the accident occurred. The rear train was running empty.

CHILD OF ALVA A. SWAIN FALLS FOUR STORIES AND SUSTAINS INJURIES FROM WHICH DEATH SOON RESULTS.

Denver, May 9.—The infant son of Alva A. Swain, correspondent of the Pueblo Chieftain and [illegible] correspondent of the Colorado Springs Gazette, died tonight from injuries received by falling from a fourth story window in the Ernest and Cranmer building. His skull was crushed and his back broken and death followed within a short time after he was taken home.

The child, in company with its mother, went to Mr. Swain's office and [illegible] the father was busy at his desk, in some manner succeeded in opening a window through which it crawled to the fire escape. Almost in front of the window is the opening through which the ladder of the fire escape runs and through this the child [illegible] before its absence from the room was noticed. The sound of the impact with the paved court below attracted the janitor who found the unconscious form of the little one lying upon its right side at the bottom of the flight.

Medical aid was hastily summoned and the injured boy carried to the home of its parents. All [illegible]

ANNA HELD APPEARANCE

Anna Held comes to the Opera house tomorrow night in the new play, Mlle. Napoleon, in which the prima donna impersonates Marcelle Mars, the greatest of France's comediennes. The scenery is said to be there are plenty of good seats remaining in the orchestra and balcony, which of course are the best places from the curtain goes up.

Fay Templeton is one of the most likeable producers of plays in this country and does it at no expense to grace or good production. Jean Richepin, the famous French dramatist, wrote Mlle. Napoleon. Joseph W. Herbert translated and adapted it while Harry B. Smith wrote the lyrics. The Duke of Reichstadt, Napoleon's son, is the hero of the piece. Fay Templeton is the heroine. Miss Templeton will be supported by a company of players selected with especial care for the parts they are to play. Special scenery and costumes have been provided. The story of the piece is laid in the period of the Napoleonic reign which gives plenty of opportunity for magnificent costuming. Anna Held is a beauty who fears no rival and she is always surrounded by a host of the most representative stage women that can be employed. As for costuming it will be beauty adorned, because the dresses are said to be gorgeous.

The first act shows the great ball and dancing room of Mlle. Mars at the Comedie Francaise in 1809. The second act is at the palace of Napoleon on the Lake of Compiegne. There are two scenes in the third act. One shows the Grand Opera House at Paris with a fancy ball in progress. The second shows the exterior of the opera house, the Island Bibe, and Seine with boats on both sides.

"IVAN THE TERRIBLE"

Wedding Play of Czar's Greatest Is Not So Forcefully Depicted by Richard Mansfield.

Tickets for Richard Mansfield's appearance at the opera house go on sale this morning. Manfield comes Tuesday evening of this week in his latest creation, "Ivan the Terrible."

The Evening Telegraph, a large country regards Ivan as and he will be greeted by the best house that he plays. Seats may be had now at the prices Mr. Mansfield always gets in one night stands, $2 in the parquet, $1.50 in the circle, $2 in the balcony and $1 in the gallery.

"Ivan" was written by Mr. Mansfield in collaboration with Lucien Calvert. Work was begun in 1898 and it may be many years before it is the greatest thing that the artist has done. The play is a masterdramatic reflection of the most sanguinary period in history. It is an historical tragedy of mediaeval Russia. For a long time, indeed until the accession of the present liberal minded Czar Nicholas, an representation of the person of the emperor of Russia was prohibited on the stage.

"Ivan the Terrible" is the first of a historical trilogy by Count Tolstoi and Mansfield contemplated the production of the second of the three. "The Czar [illegible]" when the two are concurrently [illegible] Petersburg [illegible] and Dramatic society of [illegible] decided to the appearance [illegible] of the czar there.

FINE SCENE MAY [illegible]
MOUNTAINEERS' VICTORY

Appears to Society Athletes Colorado College May Be Entitled to Second Place in Intercollegiate Athletics---Protest May Tie Action.

According to Coach Merrill and Captain Palmer of the Tigers, Colorado college may be awarded second instead of third place in the state field meet, which took place Saturday.

It will be remembered by those who attended the meet that in the 440-yard run Millbrook fell partly across the finish line, but did not touch the tape. He accepted third place in the race at that time, but a Boulder man crossed the line before Millbrook regained his feet. The only point for third place was therefore lost to Pueblo.

Speaking of the Athletic Primer says: "The finish of the course shall be represented by a line between two finishing posts, drawn across at right angles to the side of the track, and four feet above, which line shall be a tape attached at either end to the finishing posts. A finishing man shall be counted when any part of the winner's body, except his hands or arms, shall reach the finish line. The order of finishing for second and third places are to be decided in the same manner." In another book of rules governing sports that the tape shall only decide the winner of a race, while the place for second and third place runners.

It is this point that Coach Hemic and Captain Palmer desire to have explained by the referee of the meeting, and they have communicated with that official in Denver. [illegible] Saturday. Should the case in question be decided according to the above rule, Colorado college will get one point more for the third place won by Millbrook, and win from Denver university in the final score by one-third of a point—23 1-3 to 23.

JUDGE SEEDS HAD BUSY DAY

[illegible] MOTIONS OFFERED IN DISTRICT COURT — SEVERAL INTERESTING CASES WERE IN [illegible]

[illegible] Tuesday was motion day in the district court, Judge Seeds having most of his time occupied on the following cases:

In the case of J. M. Henby vs. Charles Norcum, the defendant's motion for a new trial was denied, and judgment against the defendant ordered on the verdict. The appeal bond of the defendant was fixed at $150.

In that of C. B. Portis, guardian of June Kennedy, vs. Florence Kennedy, the motion of the plaintiff to file an amended complaint was granted and the defendant was given 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

Among other motions offered was one by Attorney Charles Butler regarding the jurisdiction of the local court regarding the aldermanic cases now pending and one by Attorney George Salisbury, asking leave to amend the complaint in the case of Hunt vs. the Midland Terminal Railway company.

In the case of A. Leveling & Sons Wire Rope company vs. W. E. Cail, the motion for a new trial was denied and [illegible] ordered on the verdict recently rendered awarding $2,700 to the plaintiff in the case. The defendant gave notice of an appeal and his bond was fixed at $7,500.

In the case of the people vs. Burnside, the defendant pleading guilty to keeping and exhibiting gambling devices in his place of business, sentence was referred to the court again. The other three counts against the defendant were nolled by the district attorney.

Owing to the delay in the criminal docket of the district court, it was found necessary to grant the cases of the people vs. Dahl and of the people vs. Dawson. The cases, which were originally set for May 10 and 11, were reset for May 11 and 12.

But the locals, after the visitors had had a chance to win and came near accepting it. In the last half of the [illegible] three runs and came within one of tying the score. Here was where the excitement came in. After Thornton and Ryan had struck, Annette, Nicholas Kael, the hard-hitting great fielding Missouri [illegible] it [illegible] with the [illegible] for a three-cushion walking. Sikes followed with a single, Tommy Meehl [illegible] another three-bagger and Bernard, batting for Woodrich, rapped one over first. This combination is good for three and Nill walks. Then George Graham, the [illegible] man, ends it all by going out. The locals had scored one in their half of the seventh and three more in the eighth off singles by Sikes and Meehl and a two-pillow-baster by George Nill, who did it with his little hatchet.

It would be difficult to explain the visitors' fall of the seventh. Up to that inning Akers had pitched a splendid game, holding his opponents down to four hits to the six innings. There was nothing better than a single in the bunch, but [illegible] when two singles and a field play [illegible] an earned run. Hudson, on the [illegible] Lobe. Add [illegible] Akers' [illegible] to the big question, giving up two hits, of which two were doubles and one was a triple. The locals had secured four earned runs.

The Knock-Out Act

Then in the seventh the knock-out drops [illegible] Hudson got to first on Kahl's error, Hudson was allowed to walk and Belden's hit scored Garvin. McBride sacrificed and Hartman drew [illegible] Then, with the bases loaded, Bob Akers tapped the wilting Kenyon on the periphery of the left elbow and forced in a run. At this stage Ryan put Lengke in the box, which was not altogether liked by the fans. Of course, Akers might have been touched up for enough hits to cause the loss of the game, but he had pitched himself out of one hole and might have been able to do it again. He was not entirely responsible for the defeat as it was.

Lengke, the first man who faced Lemke, got to first on a fielder's choice. Kahl passing him up to throw Belden out at home, but his aim was bad and Belden was safe at the plate, while the other base runners traveled. A hit by Webster, a double by Garvin, a pass, another hit by Belden and McBride's two-sacker completed the outlay. Two men were then put out and the side was retired.

Woodrich pitched the [illegible] two innings and gave [illegible] one hit and one gift. The local fielders settled down and gave him good support and no more runs were scored.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Eighty Competitors in the Stroke Competition at Troon, Scotland. Only One American.

London, May 2.—There were more than 80 contestants in the stroke competition today preparatory to the opening of the lady's golf championship meeting at Troon, Scotland, tomorrow. The contest was interesting because of the fact that for the past five years the winner has eventually won the championship. Miss Grover, the Scottish champion, went the round in magnificent form in 86—easily the best score. Miss Dorothy Campbell took 88; Miss Pollett, the former champion, 91, and Miss Theresa Adair, the international champion, 97. Miss Higgins of the Midlothian club, Chicago, was the only American competitor. She played so poorly that she did not turn in her score.

Sporting Notes

The Schon-Klingston baseball team of Pueblo would like a good game in Colorado Springs with a local amateur aggregation. Address Manager, P. O. Box 33, Pueblo.

James Feist, the Pueblo walker, made the distance between Pueblo and Colorado Springs in ten hours and thirty-five minutes, Sunday. He arrived here late in the afternoon and returned to Pueblo on the train. Feist is regarded as one of the best walkers in the west.

Leave Colorado Springs today, arrive St. Louis tomorrow via D. & R. G. and Missouri Pacific. Through Pullman sleepers. See D. & R. G. agent.
